Get ya head
down

It's great to hear artists expanding their horizons and evolving over a period of years, but Mr No Hands (aka Dave Clough) seems to be doing this over a matter weeks! Deep techno and sub frequencies that will rattle your system layered with his signature zappy noises and distorted synth. But it's the smart sampling of a 1930s scat band that makes this special.

Two top
remixes

Warriors Dom and Mark took a short break from running their Punks label but are now back with two thumping remixes taken from their recent album 'Lost Files'. First up is 'Who Are The Warriors', remixed by Vacation Records label boss Bass Kleph. Bringing a similar vibe from '12 Inch Therapy', this deep, squelchy cut is already a Stanton secret weapon. New outfit Whatwhatwhat (aka Alex Metric and Sick Rick) team up to remix 'Seeker'. A gritty live bass and impressive synth work result in a festival track.

The Brothers
are back

More yummy goodness from Finger Lickin', this time it's Midlands boys Brothers Bud serving up the tasty beats. Underpinned by a catchy riff that will stick in your head for hours, reversed quick pads, poppy hi frequency rhythms and cheeky acid lines add some serious crunchiness to the track overall. This tune gets better and better.
